Some JetBlue passengers had to fly with handwritten boarding passes when the airline's computer system went offline Monday morning.

The system outage caused delays at several major airports, including John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York, Logan International in Boston and Florida airports in Tampa and Orlando.

The chaos forced flight delays as masses of ticketless passengers couldn't check in for their flights. At some airports, staffers signed handwritten passes to allow travelers to board, NBC News reported.

temporary system failure could still affect later flights as the airlines works to make up for the early delays.

"Word has it the system is back up now. Everything should be back up and running shortly," JetBlue tweeted.
